“My teaching knowledge and skills. Where do I go from here?”

Synopsis

Many of you have been teaching from some time and acquired skills along the way by attending conferences, going on a course or learning from colleagues, but, how do you know what level of expertise you currently have in all the different aspects of teaching?

This session will take a look at a way of answering this question and help you find out where you are now in terms of teaching knowledge and skills.

I will use examples from a recent training programme carried out in Spain, Portugal and Turkey to illustrate how you can implement an effective, made-to-measure training solution in your school.

ADAM EVANS has worked in the ELT world since 1984, first as an English teacher for International House and then as a representative for Cambridge University Press in Bilbao. He is a qualified teacher holding the CTEFLA and has experience in teaching all age groups. He also has an MBA and since 2001 he has been involved in teacher training in Spain & Portugal. Adam is now the Teacher Development Manager for Cambridge in Southern Europe.
