TEACHING INFLUENCE WITH INTEGRITY

Just suppose you are able to communicate with your learners in such a way that they always feel motivated to get the most out of their learning.

Imagine what would be like to see and hear you learners bring their full attention to your classroom activities and participate with enthusiasm and energy.

Take a moment to consider how you can use your classroom communication to influence you learners and have a positive impact in their learning in the days, weeks and months ahead.

When you learn the language of influence, it’s then you can discover just how easy this is to achieve.

By the end of the session you may well wonder how simply by using a set of language patterns and integrating them into your day to day work with your learners you can become an even more successful and charismatic teacher.

STORY

There is something incredibly compelling about a well-told story. It can entertain, amuse, delight, divert, provoke, disappoint, but most of all, a great story can open our imagination and influence how we understand the world. All language does that. It frames how we process and describe the world around us. When we communicate with others we shape how they understand and as teachers the words we use can have a major impact on how successful our teaching is.
